The following is the letter of Rev. Dr. Patterson, in reply to Mrs. Burch's letter of Rev. Dr. Patterson, in reply to Mrs. Burch's letter of January 27th, 1869. Both of these letters were read in court on Monday. That of Mrs. Burch has already appeared in our columns. To this letter of Rev. Dr. P., no answer was returned until the 18th of May. Mrs. Burch's note of May 18th, arrived while the Clergyman was absent from the city, and consequently was not answered till after the lat of June. Seconton, therefore, is the only remedy—s conston of only such States as would readily tall in with the conton of the conton o the extreme of folly. What does South arolina, for example, care about the Per-nal Liberty bills of Massachuset's, Verand probably never will lose, a single neenactment of laws making Sta or counties responsible in money for the full value of rescued fugitives! She knowe that her citizens would never have occasion to svail themselves of the benefits of such laws. What matters it to her whether Conhe struggle with His Holiness, Pius IX. until the final establishment of religious toleration, and the abolilion of the moaastic orders throughout the kingdom, with an eye single to the aggrandizement of his gress refuses or consents to enact a Slave Code for the protection of Slave property in the Territories? She has not a negrowhom she could spare to send to the Territories. She cares for mone of these things; and the only concession, the only comprotrin on Italian soil. In the accomplishment of this object, he perceived that the first thing to be done was to emancipate the people from papal domination—to kick off the sway which Rome exercised over the consciences of the wasses. This was the consciences of the masses. This was disunionists per se is the abandon ment of the whole ground of controversy—the withdrawal of all opposition to Slavery, whether founded upon moral of officy based upon the recognition of the astitution as of divine authority and in all accordance with the precepts of Chris-saity and wish the highest civilization the tribunal of public opinion. The great work was finally accomplished at the expense merely of a few bulls of excommni-cation. Sardinia became as free as England, and grew with astonishing rapidity to the position of the sixth power in Eu-rope—a power whose counsels were nought and whose armies were put in motion to the Crimea, when the dismemmotion to the Crimes, when the dismemberment of Turkey was essayed by the Russian Czar.

The events of the late campaign in Italy, ending with the peace of Villafrance, are too recent to require more than a passing notice. Both Cavour and Garibaldi were immeasurably disgusted with the cessation of hostilities. Both resigned their positions and both resumed them shortly after the French Emperor had marched his legions back to his capital. Garibaldi has tend to revolutionise the two Sicilies, or rather to give practical efficiency and glorious success to a revolution already bursting through the crust of a terrible tyranny. Cavour sold Nice and Savoy to France as the price of non-intervention with the afevery human chattle of whatever age or sex that might have the courage to attempt an accape from bondare; a policy that would break down the whole manufactur-ing industry of the free States by throwing our country open to the free competition of the III-de and III-paid pauper labors of the old world; a policy that would insure the ultimate possession and Africanization of Mexico, Central America and Cuba, either by purchase or conquest, and that would remove the prohibition against the African Stars unde surender the whola power and resources of the nation to the protec-

Cavour sold Nice and Savoy to France as the price of non-intervention with the affairs of Italy—s non-intervention which should be rotuntary on the part of France and compulsory on the part of France and compulsory on the part of Austria. The harvest which has been reaped to freedom numbers the rich and populous provinces of Tuscany, Parma, Modena, the Papal Legations and Marches, Naples and Sicily. But Garibaldi has proclaimed that he can never be reconciled to men who have sold an Italian province. Not a coolness merely, but a positive emitty seems to have aprung up between the two the high seas. This with the complete suppression of freedom of speech, of the press and of the pulpit, the surveillance of the mails, together with the permanent inon of the Lords of the Lash as Lords State, might prove a satisfactory be-settlement to the disunionists per ac-intil the people of the free States are red to go the entire length of the huseems to have spring up between the two liberators, the great warrior and great statesman. Whether the enmity is recip-rocated by the latter does not appear; we But there are men engaged in this movement, the stress of the spring up between the two far different purposes in view. They do not contemplate as desire section. They do not contemplate as desired as a section. They do not contemplate as desired by the latter does not appear; we should presume not. We should suppose that the magnatimity which marks a man cast in the mould of Cavour would not permit the feeling of resentment to rise against the transporting of the property. They have no desire to break loose from the Federal Union, and in the last resort we be investiged in min to see as be did. On the other hand it is easy to see how Garipaldi might have been inflamed by the sale of his birthplace to a foreign power. Nice is the home of his boyhood; power. Nice is the home of his boyhoo her waters the school of his youth and early manhood. Naturally he rebels at sceing her pass under the control of the stranger a stranger whom he distrusts and, possiby, hates. But we think that posterity, while placin; Garibaldi on the level with Cinciunatus and Washington, will confess that Cavour did the best thing supployment of the same means will secure the same result. This is the object of their participation in the second movement. They have fought Remains until it has grown strong in to vanquish them, and now they see a partly and set as a basis of settle; the concession of every principle ind in the struggle. They treat the vice a the conquered party, and demand gy would have secured had the con-

Garibald's voice was for war—war against Austria, war against tyrants in every corner of Italy, war to the knife and the establishment of a constitutional power opposite the Austrias stronghold, which could only become powerful through the healing influences of peace. Garibald broke away from the restraints of the majority by whom he was festered, and, raising a band of volunteers, Joined the patriot army at Rome where he performed prodigier of valor against Austrias, Neapolitans and French. Overpowered at last he cut his way through the besigers and endeavored to reach the heroic defenders of Venice. The story of his wreck and dispersion on the shores of the Adriatic, the decease and hurial of his tender wife, the companion of its hardships and dangers, his perilous dight to Genoa, his sejourn in the United States, his coasting adventures between Peru and California, with an occasional voyage to China—these things are now familiar to all readers. He left Italy in chains, with the solitary exception of the kingdom whence he had departed in diagns.

ANOTHER EXSIDER VIEW.

The moment we throw off the restraints of the Constitution, surrendering to the North our rights in the territories, our interest in the public domain—in our courts, our army and navy, and our federal treasury—that moment we are domain—in our courts, our army and navy, and our federal treasury—that moment we are domeit to destruction. Secession can afford no paillation for our wrongs; it can only precipitate us into greater evila, as we must forfest all of our rights under the Constitution when we leave the Union, and give to our Northern fose all they need to render their aggressive policy more effective.

Shall we then give up all, under a cowardly fear of prospective danger, and at the same time, desert our sister States of Maryland, Virginia, Ker tucky and Missouri—leaving thou a prey to the fury of a merciless enemy, who with the whole power of the Federal Government, and a mutilated Constitution, will drive them to emancipation, and soon surround us with a cordon of free States? The border States cannot long maintain their present position if we deserf them. They will be harmassed by their aboiltion neighborsynuli compelied to dispose of their silves in the South-Tennessee, then, will occupy the front rank, and she, in turn, become a free State, placing Mississippi upon the border, whos, with six millions of slaves reworded into the projected Southern Confederace, and a chain of abolition States surrounding and pressing upon us, the institution of slavery—the source of all our high civilization—must "sting itself to death." It behoeves as all to view with esammess the difficulties surrounding us, and to dark with institution of slavery—the source of all our high civilization—must "sting itself to death." It behoeves us all to view with calmess the difficulties surrounding us, and to act with firances and deliberation. In view of all the circumstances, we should adopt that line of policy which shall strengthen us in our present position, and not abandon to the North screything we hold dear, which we must do should we leave the Union, that we may the letter protect our rights and the rights of our state border States. So far from abandoning are can defended, it is our best policy to retain some as allies, keeping them in their present cation as border States, which we can do by he passage of laws forbidding the farther in-ortation of slaves into the Southern States, deforeservation now demands that we should

It is gratifying to witness a general cessation of the spasmodic speeches and actions of the fire-eating politicians south of firm and dignified old Virginia. The telegraph has given ling in common sense and common patricitsm; there must be something of fire and fury is the maration of the events of the times. Who wants to read anything else? The horrible is all that can be used for news. Consequently, extravagant speeches, blue cockades, war to the knife, and all such stuff, is carefully collected, greatly exaggerated, and hastily served up for the public palate. But while half of these statements are burely sensational, yet I regret ted, greatly exaggrated, and hastily served upted, greatly exaggrated, and hastily served upstream of the public palate. But while half of thesstatements are purely sensational, yet I regret to see that some of the Northern papers are underrating the danger of disunton. While it is the prevalent opinion that the great majority of the Southern people see Mr. Lincola in the Presidential chair, and uphold him in the strictly constitutional exercise of the powerbelonging to his official position, yet there is a terrible extrestness in the South in their repeated decharations that they will combine in their resistence to any action on the part of the Executive learning toward an infraction of the guaranties of the Constitution. For the sake of the Union, let not the North decelvherself.

The effect of the unsettled condition of the affairs of the country is becoming here more wisely felt and distressing every day. I meta man gesterday—an excellent mechanic and worthy person—who stated to me that he wasout of employment, destitute of money, and that his family was literally without a particle of food. Of courie, as soon as his condition was made known he was furnished by his immediate stiends with the means of temporarrelief. But, unfortunately, there are Amodraisof others nearly, if not quite, as badly off, with no hope of a change for the better for months to come. Nature has bestowed her gifts with a bountiful hand. Better crops, of all descriptions, were never made in Virginia; the barns of the farmers are filled to overflowing; but there is no inoncy in circulation—trade is at a dead stand-still; there is a total lack of confidence, and though a suspension of the benks afforded an easier feeling for the time being, yet there is no longer any donbt upon the minds of observing men that a torrible financial crisis is at hand, which must inevitably eventuate in many failures her additional bout both North and South. The weak cannot financial crisis is at name, when must meven-ble eventuate in many-situres here and through-out both. North and South. The weak cannot hope to weather the storm, while those who, have hitherto been entirely confident in their strength, are preparing for the weat. There will be fewer tobacco manufactories in this city during the ensuing year by at Pass half a score, one consequee of which will be to weath reduce the the hire of negroes. Slave score, one consequence which agrees slave property has already deteriorated in value to per cent, within the present month, and still greater reduction's yet to come.

The Milledgeville correspondent of The Southern Guardian says:

We had a little excitement here last night, owing to a New Jessey gentleman having expressed his opinions rather too freely in relation to the Legialature, the "lastitution," and the South generally. He was allowed to progress until "forbearance ceased to be a virtue," when a rope was procured and fastened around his neck, and but for the interference of some of the older citizens, would have the doubtedly been hung. His piece was that he was draunk. He was confined in the calaboose and it is thought he may thank his stars if he A LITTLE EXCITEMENT. was drank. He was confined in the calaboose and it is thought in may think his stars if he gets off with as mild a represel as a coat of far-and feathers, and a good flogging. The weather is "awfully disagrecable." I have often wondered why it was that such an unpleasant and unhealthy month was selected for the sitting of the Legislature.

A PALPANIA MIL. familin has "a stain of negro blood in his rains." and that "high-toned, honorable, high-Hamlin has "a stain of negro blood in his veius," and that "high-tond, honorable, high-spirited, pagud Southern men," ought not to submit to his election, replies thus:

'The Democracy first elected film to the House of Representatives, then to the Sonate, and he sat there along with the Southern Senators without anybody refining to submit it to his election. If some of our excessively senative friends would reflect a little, they might probably reflect that such high-strung Southerners as Jefferson Davis have actually been withing in the United States Senate with him for your. The white population of South Carolina was 274,562.

At this moment the white population of the former States is probably not less than five millions, while that of the latter scarcely exceeds three hundred thousand.

Now, is in not a little arrogant for South Carolina, with a white population of less than a third of a million, to tell the five millions of white men it seven other States that she intends to drag them into rebellion and revolution, whether they will or no?

Ought they not, in unmistakable terms, to tell her that they do not mean to be led by her to their own destruction, and that if she does not pause in her mad career, she will, so far as they are concerned, be left to encounter alone the tremendous responsibility?

As an instance of the effect of outside pressure upon editors of newspapers, during these stirring times, we take the following from the Dadeville (Ala.) Banaer:

War COMMERCED.—The hell-hounds of fan-

Dadeville (Ala.) Banner:

WAR COMMENCED.—The hell-hounds of fanalicism have aiready commenced their work of destruction and desolation upon our friends in New-York city, by firing and consuming the Astor House. But they met with a fearful retribution; the friends of the South railited, and burned down the Thomsand Tribune offices, and about seventy other buildings belonging to the Republicans. From last accounts they were on the eve of collision.

PROPOSITION TO PUT DOWN EXCITEMENT. correspondence of the New York Times of Wednesday:

It is also said that on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, an influential member of the Republican party will offer resolutions in Congress, declaring the rights of the seweral States in terms which must be satisfactory to every Union-loving man in the South, with the emphrite declaration that this bill of rights the Republican party is willing to embody in the Constitution. Should this be done, all excitement, it is believed, will subside in forty-eight hours, and that reason will resume her sway, to the chagrin and mortification of those who have labored so long and so exprestly to break up the Confederacy.

THE SECESSION MOVEMENT.

The New Orleans Cressest goes beyond Personal liberty laws in its requirements, and demands a re-education of the people of the North thus:

No, there must be a revolution in the sentiment of the North, and not in her legislation only, before these troubles can be settled.
That section must came to the conclusion that as we make no war upon their system of labor and their social institutions, they must make none upon us. They must conclude to let us alone, even as we have always let them alone.
If they cannot be convinced of the daumostrable fact that our system of labor benefits them in the Union, even as much as it benefits us, let them at least leave the existence of slavery t them at least leave the existence of slavery those alone who are responsible for it. Re-caling their personal Liberty bills is not the mody that will be acceptable to the South—pealing their personal Liberty bills is not the remody that will be acceptable to the Southof that let them be assured. The remedy consists in re-educating the masses of the people in instilling into their hearts the divine virtue of justice—in teaching them to observe that golden rule which requires that the, should treat others as they would itemselves wish to be treated under similar circumstances—and that other golden rule of attending acclusively to their own business and letting other people attend to theirs, free from all outside intercrence. With their present feeling of hatred to the South, it is impossible for us to get along, together, even should they repeal every law they have passed. It is this feeling which consituates a perpetual, standing insult to our seetion, and this feeling must be dislocked from their hearts before the Union can ever be reextablished upon its old basis.

Danger of the Country.

[From the N. Y. Evangelist.]

It is idle to deny that our country is at this moment in a costion of serious peril. The Nullification excitement in 1822, so promptly suppressed by the wisdom and frames of Girn Jackson, was far less threatening than the present agistion at the South. That was confined chiefly to one State, while this extends to several. The people seem in a siste bordering on trenay, sand beat on some desperate act. It is uscless to argue with them, that they sorth has done nothing to provoke it, and does not mean to do anything to injure them. To exposulate with men in this state of mind, is futile. Such is the temper of South Carolina at this moment, that the people wind that they can be a such as the such as the south of the remember of their hearis before the Union can ever be reestablished upon its old basis.

Danger of the Country.
[From the N. Y. Evangelist.]

It is idle to deny that our country is at this moment in a osition of serious peril. The Nullification excitement in 1832, so promptly suppressed by the wisdom and firmness of Gen. Jackson, was far less threatening than the present agitation at the South. That was confined chiefly to one State, while this extends to several. The people seem in a state bordering on frenzy, and bend on some desperate act. It is useless to argue with them, that there is so esues for all this excitement; that the North has done nothing to provoke
it, and does not mean to do anything to injure them. To expostulate with men in this state of mind, is futtle. Such is the temper of South Carolina at this moment, that the people will not listen even to their own citizens, when they counsel moderation. Hence sober men are silent, while violence and passion rule the lour.

Seeing this popular frenzy, we shall not be surprised to witness an attempt at secession on the part of South Carolina, joined perhaps by several other cotton States. In vain do we say that it is against their interest to go; when men are thus excited, they are not governed by interest, but by passion and self will. Even though the deed were one of self-destruct on, men who are infatuated do sometimes commit suiteids.

But what shall we do to evert this great ca-lamity? Shall we get on our knees to the South, to beg her to stay in the Usion? This would be a sacrifice of our manhood, which could only provoke contempt. Besides, if the South, to beg her to stay in the Union? This would be a sacrifice of our manhood, which could only provoke contempt. Besides, if the principles that we have professed are right, they cannot be disavowed. We love our whole country—we love the South, but we do not love Starry, and we are not going to profess to love it. Dear as that portion of the Union is, truth is dearer. If we have done wrong, let them show us wherein, and we will retrace our steps. But so long as our judgments remain unchanged, we cannot yield to threats, what we have not yielded to conviction.

What, then, can we do? We own frankly that we do not see that we can do anything but await patiently the course of events. We have no new professions to make, no new principles to avow or disavow. The North stands just where it has ever stood, meaning to be loyal to the Constitution. Whatever alse we crited partians may say or do, the great body of Northern men have no thought of interference with the institutions of the South. They do not stack Slavery in the Stares where it exists; but they do mean to resist all attempts to extend it over territory which our fathers solemnly dedicated to Freedom.

But if we cannot do anything, we can forbear to do navel. We need not pour oil upon the fames. We need not irritate the South by tannts, or boasts, or exultations. Those who are successful can afford to be magnanimous, and to restrain foolish boasting. And such we think has been the diagrace of so many party victories. The spirit his been almost uniformly one of forbearance. This is well. This sixting we fame the provocation of the South.

Garmandor's Poveratt.—A letter from Capua, of November 5, in the Press, says — King Victor Emanuel is coming, and Garthaddi is going—such at least, is the general expectation. Garibaddi having told his secretary, and two aldes decamp to haid themselves in readiness to depart, they felt it indispensable to remind him that he was absolutely without money, and that he must think how to procure a few hundred frames for his voyage. The fact is the min who has given to redemon eight unilions of subjects has never taken a sou of pay or salary for himself. Garibaldi's Great Act.

Garibaldi's hat act is the noblect of all his life. When the braze soldier drew his sword to achieve the liberty of Italy, all men looked on with admiration. When that liberty was achieved—after a long struggle, ending at least in victory—if he had chosen to but almost? at the head of the Government, which he might casily have done by using eatly half the sirts of commonplace politicisms, his elevation would have teen looked upon only as the logistimates reward for his brillant exploits. But in the inal hour of complete triumph, he rides to Turin, knocks at the palacegate, fires the crows of italy sceneral upon the head of Victor Franancel, and then retires to the voluntary obscurity of his island-hone at Caprera—"Walle all the world wonders."
